Disclosure Protections

Protecting participant privacy is critical from both a compliance and ethics perspective. It must also be balanced with ensuring data utility for research. In accordance with best practices, we offer several layers of privacy protections for the de-identified, NDWS public use files.

First, we removed all direct identifiers under the HIPAA safe harbor method (e.g., date of birth) or variables for which we were concerned that participant identity could be considered readily ascertainable under the Human Subjects Research Regulations (e.g., geographic area).

Second, we classified indirect identifiers—i.e., a variable or collection of variables that could be used in combination to identify a unique individual. For example, indirect identifiers that were continuous (e.g., degree year) were converted into categorical versions, while categorical variables with multiple options were collapsed in some cases (e.g., race).

We also applied complementary cell suppression of indirect identifiers to satisfy k-anonymity, where individual cells of indirect identifiers are replaced with missing values until the k-anonymity condition is met. A k value determines the minimum group size of indirect identifiers (i.e., the number of individuals with the same non-missing indirect identifiers) in response to any query—in other words, using the indirect identifiers available in the survey, a k value reflects the number of unique respondents who share a specific combination of identifiers (e.g., a psychiatrist who earned their degree in 2002 and practices in a rural setting). Ideally, the function of the algorithm is to identify the minimum number of cells which must be suppressed to satisfy k-anonymity. We adopted k=3—meaning no fewer than 3 respondents could share a particular combination of indirect identifiers—as an appropriate balance between data privacy and utility given that we removed the variables we deemed to carry potential risk (e.g., to financial standing, employability, or reputation) and the complete, unredacted surveys are also available to researchers in a secure enclave that affords additional privacy protections. For each survey, the NDWS team identified high-priority variables among the indirect identifiers that were prioritized for inclusion by the algorithm. To maximize PUF utility for researchers, our general approach was to exclude indirect identifiers that required more than 20% of variable suppression.

Third, we removed all variables alone or in conjunction which we believed posed a potential risk to the participants' financial standing, employability, or reputation as required for exempt research under 45 CFR § 46.104(d)(2).

Together, these procedures provide multiple, complementary layers of protection that align with federal and state standards while preserving the analytic value of the NDWS public use files. By combining the removal of identifiable data, high-risk variables, categorical recoding, suppression of small groups, and application of a secure enclave for full data access, we believe we have appropriately protected participant privacy. At the same time, these measures were designed to also ensure data utility such that the NDWS remains a robust and reliable resource for advancing research.
